

MORE MEMPHIS BEAUTIES VIE FOR HONORS IN MARGUERITE CLARK QUEST FOR PRETTIEST GIRL

Miss Annie Stephenson

Miss Julia Craig

Miss Theresa Bright

From the huge mail which greeted the contest editor of the Marguerite Clark beauty quest Friday morning, three more pretty girls were chosen for presentation today to the readers of The News Scimitar. They are just representative of the many pretty girls whose photographs have been sent in by admiring friends or relatives for entry in the contest.

The task confronting the three local judges, Messrs. O. K. Houck, Angelo Corless and T. H. Robinson, when this committee was to select the 12 prettiest girls in the city, looms up more and more as the contest proceeds as a mighty undertaking. Dozens of photographs of pretty girls are being submitted daily and as the contest nears its close, unexampled interest is being manifested.

It now appears that more than 200 photographs will be ready for presentation to the judging committee at the close of the contest Saturday night, Nov. 15, at midnight. From these photographs the committee is to pick 12 of the prettiest. These will be sent to Marguerite Clark in New York City and she will decide the winner of the handsome silver trophy donated by Julius Goodman, which may be seen in the Goodman jewelry store window, 3 South Main street. Miss Clark, who only recently completed her latest picture, "Luck in Pawn," which is being shown this week at the Strand theater, will not know the names of the 12 prettiest girls submitted to her but will give back the number of the winner. The cup will be presented to the winner next week by Chairman Houck, who is known as a flowery speechmaker. Photographs may be sent in by anyone and should be mailed or brought to the Marguerite Clark beauty contest editor, care of The News Scimitar, before midnight Saturday.
